New Zealand Love The Earth Press

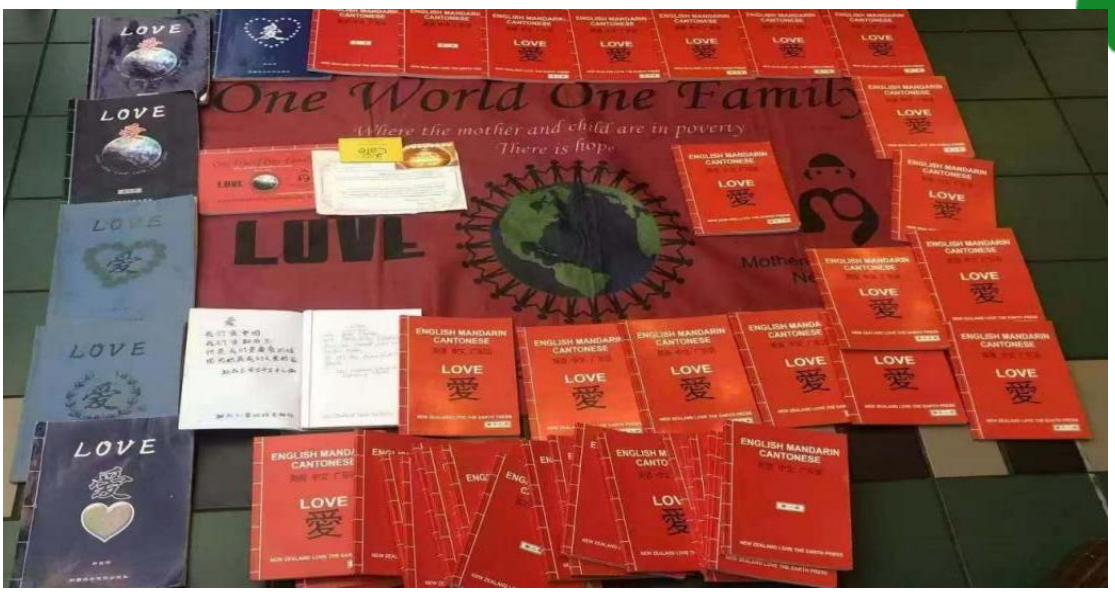

Bilingual Education, Community Care and Our 35-Book Collection

Our Story - One Earth, One Family

At the heart of our work is a simple belief: everyone deserves kindness, care and the opportunity to build a better future.

Our journey began in 1990. Today, through New Zealand Love The Earth Press, New Zealand Mothercare Foundation and New Zealand Chinese Learning Centre, we continue this work through education, bilingual publishing and community care. For more than four decades, our charity chairs and volunteers have dedicated their time, energy and personal resources to helping children, families and people facing difficult times.

Bilingual education has long been an important part of our mission. Through publications such as “Love” magazine, we have shared language, culture and knowledge with readers in New Zealand and beyond. We believe that learning another language can open doors to new friendships, greater understanding and opportunities in life.

Early Bilingual Publications by New Zealand Love The Earth Press

For decades, we have remained committed to spreading love, guided by our belief that "Love is God, Love is Hope" and our vision of "One Earth, One Family." We were the first organisation to put forward this proposal to the relevant education authorities: to promote the learning of a second language around the world, particularly in New Zealand, from kindergarten and primary school through secondary school and university, and even within government organisations. We encourage people from different linguistic and cultural backgrounds to learn from one another, share their strengths and experiences, and promote multicultural understanding, exchange and integration.

Our guiding belief is "One Earth, One Family." To us, caring for people and caring for the planet go hand in hand. Through education, publishing and acts of kindness, we hope to pass on compassion, knowledge and respect for the Earth to future generations.

A Little Kindness Can Change a Life

One day, a young man who had been through some difficult times walked into our charity café and took some sandwiches and fruit because he was hungry.

Instead of calling the police, we invited him to sit down and offered him a warm meal. When we learned that he had nowhere to stay, we helped provide him with food and accommodation.

Over the following months, we helped him learn Chinese and eventually find a job with a local Chinese employer.

When he received his first wages, he returned to the café with $20 in his hand. Speaking in Chinese, he proudly told us, “I can buy my own food now!”

It was a small moment, but one we will never forget.

His story reminds us that sometimes, all a young person needs is someone willing to give them a chance.

Supporting Young People to Grow and Succeed

With the care, encouragement and guidance of the charity chairs of New Zealand Love The Earth Press, young people have been given opportunities to grow, develop their potential and build a brighter future. Their progress reflects the positive impact of community support and youth development.

Years of Care and Community Support

The young man's story is just one example of the care and support our charity chairs and volunteers have provided over the years.

Through decades of dedication, we have continued to support children, families, young people and those facing difficult times.

Some of the ways we have made a difference:

- 192 bilingual magazine issues published, sharing language, culture and knowledge.
- Over 24,000 bilingual books donated to schools and communities around the world.
- More than 5,200 instances of employment assistance, helping people find work and new opportunities.
- Over 10,000 free meals served to people in need.
- More than 200 young people supported in returning to education and employment.
- 420 couples brought together through our volunteer matchmaking service.
- Over 1,000 instances of temporary accommodation assistance for people facing difficult circumstances.

Behind every number is someone who needed a little help, a warm meal, a safe place to stay or simply someone who cared.

Over the years, our charitable activities have included book donations, employment assistance, free meals, youth support, volunteer matchmaking and temporary accommodation. Our efforts have resulted in 192 bilingual magazine issues published, over 24,000 bilingual books donated, more than 5,200 instances of employment assistance, over 10,000 free meals provided, more than 200 disadvantaged young people supported, 420 couples brought together through volunteer matchmaking, and over 1,000 instances of temporary accommodation assistance.

35 Books, A World to Discover

As part of our ongoing commitment to bilingual education, New Zealand Love The Earth Press has created a collection of 35 Chinese–English bilingual books to help children discover the joy of learning two languages.

The books explore a wide range of topics, including nature, animals, plants, space, geography, everyday life and environmental protection. Each book combines Chinese characters, Hanyu Pinyin, English, colourful illustrations and interactive activities to make learning more engaging and accessible.

To bring the books to life, we have also created 35 accompanying animated videos, featuring Chinese and English narration by a New Zealand-born girl of Chinese heritage. Available on a USB drive and through online access, these videos allow children to read, watch and listen at their own pace.

Together, the books and videos aim to inspire curiosity, encourage bilingual learning and help children develop an appreciation for different cultures and the world around them.

A Gift That Keeps Giving

A good book can stay with a child for years, and a thoughtful gift can be passed down through generations.

Our 35-book bilingual collection is available as a beautifully presented gift set, making it a meaningful present for children, grandchildren and loved ones, especially at Christmas and other special occasions.

We also warmly welcome individuals, families and businesses who wish to purchase and donate books to children, schools and communities in need. We would also be pleased to acknowledge the generosity of donors through personalised gift packaging and our Love The Earth Heroes Honour Roll.

We hope each gift will bring not only the joy of reading, but also a love of learning, kindness towards others and care for our planet.

Looking Ahead, Together

Completing our 35-book bilingual collection is not the end of our journey. It marks the beginning of a new chapter.

We hope to bring these books to more children, families, schools and communities, inspiring young learners to explore languages, discover the world and care for our planet.

We warmly welcome educators, families, businesses and community organisations to join us in promoting bilingual education, sharing the joy of reading and supporting those in need.

Our heartfelt thanks go to everyone who has supported our work over the years. Your kindness, generosity and encouragement have helped make this journey possible.

Together, we can help build a kinder, greener future for the next generation.
